

The Black Walrus and Kevin is now available!

He is the Labrador that scoots its behind across the carpet of villainy. It is he who burps the Tupperware® of evil.

Book 2 in the Black Walrus series, The Black Walrus and Kevin, is now available! If you're looking for adventure and comedy stories for boys, you need to check out the series!

The book kicks the action off right away as Alex Portobello, a.k.a., the Black Walrus, leaps into another adventure. Utilizing his radioactive super brain, this ingenious eighth-grader has constructed an arsenal of gadgets, recruited an army of martial arts walruses, and established himself as the spandex-clad defender of Cremini City.

But the Black Walrus alone isn't enough to slice all the crusts of villainy from the city's pastrami on rye. Not only is crime still rampant, but the mysterious Questionable Science, Incorporated, is experimenting with dairy power technology. Someone is creating milk-fueled jetpacks and gouda-powered laser blasters.

To deal with this new threat, Alex must face his greatest challenge yet: training his hyperactive little cousin, Kevin, to be his sidekick.

With an incorruptible sense of justice and lots and lots of sugar coursing through his veins, Kevin has the makings of a great hero. But can Alex mold Kevin into a top-notch crime-fighter before it's too late? Or will Cremini City fall before the calcium-rich menace?

Pick up Book 2 to find out!

A big thanks to everyone who made this book possible: my editor, my beta readers, my parents, my cover designer, the RMFW Aurora Critique Group, and everyone at Author YOU.

Pick up your copy of The Black Walrus and Kevin here: bit.ly/blackwalrusandkevin or ask for it wherever books are sold!